he believed her to be a good boat, but that she was then chartered, and would probably not be again in the market for sale until the end of May.

If a mean vessel, such as the increasing travel and commerce of the islands demand, can be obtained on terms which the revenue can afford, an appropriation for that purpose recommends itself to every intelligent mind. I have no means of estimating, (but the amount must be very large.) the quantity of perishable produce which now, without the speedy and sure conveyance of a steamer, never sees a market or turns one cent of profit to the producer.

I would recommend that encouragement be held out to any parties who may be willing to lay on a line of steamers between these islands and San Francisco: because, if a good line were once properly established, the very fact of our being thus placed in close and regular communication with our principal foreign market would exert a beneficial influence on commerce and agriculture, and stimulate the production and exchange of many articles, which either now are, or then might become, staples of export. The cultivation of potatoes, &c., might then revive, and a greater energy and closer attention to the production of tropical fruits, in which we now are sadly deficient.

In the month of April, 1857, His Majesty's government, being anxious to obtain guano for the benefit of our agriculturists, an expedition was fitted out in the schooner Manuokawai, under the charge of Capt. J. Paty, to ascertain whether any guano existed on Bird Island, Necker Island, or any other islands or rocks laying to the north-west of this group, and should you require it, copies of Capt. Paty's report, which gives a detailed account of his voyage and discoveries, will be furnished you. I also append, marked E. Dr. Hillebrand's analysis of the guano brought from Laysan and Liscanskey's Islands. I likewise append, marked F, the analysis of samples sent to France, and from these two reports I am afraid that the product will not pay to ship to foreign afraid that the product will not pay to ship to foreign

There being no appropriation to meet the expenses of this expedition, I was authorized by His Majesty in Privy Council to pay the same out of the appropriation for incidental expenses of this department, which I trust will meet your approval. The cost of the expedition, after disposing of the returned stores, amounted to $1,296 73.

On the 26th August I addressed a letter to Capt. Paty, by order of His Majesty in Privy Council, in-forming him that he had conducted the expedition trusted to his care to the entire satisfaction of the King's government.

I further append, marke | G and H, the reports of the R. H. Agricultural Society.

I also append, marked I, the report of Public

On the 6th day of June, 1857, Mr. Young, in conequence of bad health, and a wish expressed by his Majesty that he would accept the office of Chamberlain and perform other official duties near his person, resigned his commission as Minister of the Interior, and on the same date his Majesty confided the care of this Department to me. A resolution was passed by his Majesty in Cabinet Council on the same day authorizing me to draw on the Minister of Finance for the salary as Minister of the Interior, as well as my salary as appropriated in the Civil List, with this understanding, that I was to pay Mr. Young one of these salaries as compensation for his services as Chamberlain and for other official duties which the King might confide to him. Under this resolution the late Mr. Young was paid at the rate of $4,000 per annum out of the appropriation for the Minister of the Interior up to the time of his death, which occurred on the 18th of July, since when nothing has been drawn on this appropriation.

This provision, made by his Majesty's Cabinet, for a person who had so long filled high and important offices under the Government, I trust will be proved by the Legislature.

I am happy to inform you that the Act relating to the Road Tax passed by the last Legislature, authorizing me to appoint the Road Supervisors, has had a beneficial effect throughout the kingdom. The roads are much better looked after than they were under the old system, and in some districts the amounts collected as commutation for the said tax is sufficient to keep the roads and bridges in repair, without any special appropriation from the Legislature. In the remote districts, however, where nearly the whole of the tax is worked out, some appropriations will be required, which I will bring before you, as recom-mended by the Road Supervisors of those districts. On referring to the tables below a comparison will be seen showing the difference of the receipts as reported by the Road Supervisors in 1853, under the old system, and those in the year 1857, under the BOAD SUPERVISORS' REPORTS FOR THE YEAR 1853.

I also append the report of the President of the Board of Education. I beg to call your attention to a law which will be brought before you, to give parents greater control over their children than they have at present—the law, as it now stands, being a dead letter, for it is only in cases of truant children over fourteen years of age that the judiciary has any power to act; and that power is to send such children to work on the reef, in the company of thieves!

The relation between parent and child is too sacred not to be jealously guarded by a wise and considerate government, and it becomes the duty of the Legislature to see that no third unauthorized party be permitted to step in and weaken that relation of authority, obedience and love. I believe that no law can convert a careless, neglectful and indifferent parent into a good and attentive one, but it may come to the essistance of such parents or guardians by having an enactment passed inflicting a penalty on every relative or other person who harbors or encourages away a child from the home and authority of its parents.

I think also that the law should confer power on the

I think also that the law should confer power on the judiciary to cause truant children to be arrested and restored to their parents and homes.

Social manners and social morals receive their shape and development from home-education, whatever be the color and polish imparted to them from public education. However great the advantages which this people have derived from the introduction of Christianity and purer ideas of its relation to God, yet it is undeniably true, for it is felt and seen in almost every hamlet, around almost every hearth, that, had the fifth commandment been as strenuously that, had the fifth commandment been as strenuously insisted upon, as carefully expounded and inculcated as the tourth, the conformity to its behests could not have failed to be as strikingly observable as is the conformity to the behests of that other commandment. In this respect the present might learn from the past; for in the days of Kamehameha I. parental authority was more efficient than now, and the care that parents took of their children was greater. Then, obedience was the only system, the only rule. How that obedience was directed or misdirected it matters not now to investigate. It existed, however, as a principle, as a base to which a better direction could have given surer development and greater results. But knowledge came and spread its mantle of light over the land, it burned the idols and it razed the heiaus; it may the plow of civilization and Christianity through the length and breadth of the land, to prepare it for a new harvest of better things, but in so doing it uprected many a thrifty tree as well as a super-abundance of weeds; and without intending it, no doubt, but as a consequence, parental authority became leasured.

Paradoxical as it may sound, nevertheless it is pretty clear that, as a general thing, education has hitherto created instead of levelled, social distinctions in this country. The education which the children receive is a boom that was not accessible to their parents. Hence the parents look upon the children as consequently loth to correct them when they misbehave and are disobediated. The parents look upon themselves as part and protten of the past, whose land-marks—right and wrong—were torn up by the new system; and with unsettled notions of duty and liberty, fancying per-haps that education is a passport to impunity, they relax the bonds of obedience in which themselves were held, and resign their children to the drift of their own passions.

Besides, the facility with which truant children find a shelter and encouragement from real or pretended relations is a serious annoyance and drawback to every right-minded parent that happens to know, and wish to do, his duty to his child.

ARE NOW REAL PROVISIONS, SHIP C

To remedy these evils, we must take up some of the threads which the new system dropped out of its web; we must begin with obedience to parents at home, to teachers at school—while both parents and teachers should be made to understand that to "honor thy father and thy mother" is as much a Divine command as to "keep the Sabbath holy," and—with all reverence be it spoken—of far greater social importance. Who cannot obey, as a child, is unfit to command, as a man. While on the subject of public morals, I beg leave to record another remark.

When, by the permission of the King, and the conversion of the principal chiefs, the new religion became the dominant one, the practice obtained, and has, to a great extent, prevailed ever since, of invariably appointing professed church-members to any office or situation in the gift of the government. It may have originated in an over-estimation or underestimation of human character, as it lay on this or that side of an arbitrary line; it may have been but another version of the political doctrine that " to the victors belong the spoils; but however that may be, it cannot be denied that the effect has been numer to disappointments to the government, and, I regret to say, not unmerited reproach to a church, whose mem-bers found in their religion a convenient foot-stool for their political aspiration. To have this idea removed I wish it to be understood that, while I have had the honor to preside over this department, I never have, and never shall, exact any other qualifications for offices of which this department may have the disposal, that that of competency, ability and loyalty—believ-ing that thus His Majesty's Government will be best served, and a powerful motive to hypocrisy removed. The elevation of the Hawaiian people to the level of other people in civilized lands is a problem which the pious, the good and true of foreign climes have for forty years end avored to solve, and with what success—let those answer whose spears drank the blood of their foes on the Pali of Nuuanu; whose relatives or children bled on the altars of Kaili and Kalaipahoa; let those answer who owned nothing in life, not even hope of a future; who were slaves, in the deepest sense of the word; and who, in their own persons or their children, now occupy your benches as free men, and legislators of a free people.

But though the change has been great and marvellous; though the steps in the ladder of civilization have been cleared by bounds, rather than by the slow and toilsome progress which has characterized the upward career of other nations, yet let us not flatter ourselves that the problem is solved and the goal achieved. Foreign aid and foreign countenance, though invaluable as pi neers and auxiliaries, cannot do that for us which, if it is done at all, must be done by ourselves. On us then depends the final solution of this great problem, with all its responsibilities and all its risks.

While we then honor and respect those who spent the strength of their lives and the powers of their intellects to accumulate for, and instruct us in the use of the materials, implements and facilities for accom-plishing the task before us, let our first duty be to supply the omissions and repair the deficiencies in-separable, perhaps, from the very rapidity of our education as a nation. Of these there are two thatimperatively claim our attention.

The first is a stricter regard to the preservation of life by affording facilities for the prevention and cure of diseases. On this subject any explanation on my part would be a work of supererogation, and should you require particular information. I have no doubt that the medical faculty of Honolulo will cheerfully I would take the liberty to suggest, that, in whatever manner you may choose to provide for this crying want, you will avoid the evil of half measures, or an inadequate appropriation for the purpose.

The second, is such a change in the common school system as will give a thorough, unintermittent stimulus to the spread of the English language. In our progress, as a nation, we have been placed under a pressure of circumstances to which no other nation ever was subjected before. To them civilization came with slow and almost imperceptible instalments, and their language had ample time to adapt itself to the new ideas which sometimes took a century or more before they became developed and dominant. To us, however, that time is denied. To us civilization comes ready dressed, and we must take her on her own terms, or not at all, if we wish to attain to a true comprehension of her spirit, rather than a mere acquiescence in her forms.

It also becomes a matter of national self-preservation that our people, the Hawaiian born, should, as soon as possible, be able to stand up on equal terms with the foreign born in the school, the college, the forum and the mart. While the language of the foreigner enables him to drink full draughts from the fountains of knowledge and wisdom, our own language is, as yet, entirely inadequate to slake our thirst; and hence, in the daily practical contest of life, we are continually laboring under a disadvantage that bars us from developing the intellectual resources which God has given us in common with others; a disadvantage as humiliating to ourselves as it is unfavorable to a fair solution of the great question before us. To educate ourselves, the language must first be educated, and for that, as I said above, we have no

The acquisition of a language then, which will remove this bar, which will enable our people to stand on equal terms with others, is a subject of the highest importance. To obtain this-to facilitate and speed its acquisition, I woun! suggest that the government schools be kept in the English language; and that the change from the present system be adopted gradually, but as speedily as the means at the command of the Board of Education will permit. If the principle be established, the means will not long fail to be forthcoming. The people will then be so much richer by the possession of another language capable to place them fully en rapport with their new duties which their new condition and growing civilization GOD SAVE THE KING. OFFICE OF THE PANAMA RAIL-READ COMPANY, NEW YORK, July 20, 1857. New York, July 20, 1857.

The Panama Rail-Road Company takes this method of informing those interested in the Whaling business, of the advantages offered by the Railroad across the Isthmus of Panama, for the shipment of Oil from the Pacific to the United States, and for sending outfits and supplies from the United States to Panama.

The Railroad has been in regular and successful operation for more than two years, and its capacity for the transportation of every description of merchandise, including Oil, Provisions, &c., has been fully tested. The attention of several Captains of whaleships has recently been turned to the subject of shinning their oil from Panama to New York during the present season, and the Panama Rail-Road Company has made arrangements to afford every facility which may be required for the accomplishment of this important object. A Pier, 450 feet long, has been built in the bay of Panama, to the end of which Freight Cars are run to receive cargoes from lighters or vessels lying wall. Vessels of from 200 to 300 tons can lie at the Pier with safety, grounding in the mud at low water.

The vessels to and from Aspinwall are fast-salling brigs, be longing to the Rail-Road Company, and the Company is prepared to receive oil at Panama and deliver it in New York, pared to receive oil at Panama and deliver it in New York, under through Bills of Lading at the rate of seven cents per gallon, if received at the Pier, and eight cents per gallon if received in the harbor from ship's tackles, charging for the capacity of the casks, without allowing for wantage. For whalebone, one and one-half cents per pound. This charge covers every expense from Panama to New York, in case the oil is sent through the Superintendent or Commercial Agent of the Panama Rail-Road Company, insurance excepted. The freights may be made payable on the Isthmus or in New York at the outlon of the shipper. t the option of the shipper.

The vessels of the Company sail regularly semi-monthly, and the average passages to and from Aspinwall are about twenty to twenty-five days. The time occupied in crossing the Ishmus is four hours. Oil, during its transit across the Ishmus, will be covered with canvas, or conveyed in covered cars, and owners may be assured that every care will be taken to prevent leakage. Several cargoes have already been conveyed to New York without the slightest loss.

Oil or other goods consigned for transportation to the Super-intendent of the Panama Rail-Road Company, or to William Nelson, Commercial Agent of the Company at Panama, will be received and forwarded with the greatest despatch. Tr Frederic L. Hanks has been appointed Agent at Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, and is prepared to furnish every requisite
